Instructions to Authors

The main emphasis of the journal is on original empirical work, new directions in research, scholarly case studies, and comprehensive overviews or syntheses considered for publication. The JPP web site (www.journalofpediatricpsychology.org) includes book reviews in addition to genuine book reviews. Manuscripts are welcomed from authors in disciplines that study children and families.

Manuscript preparation: Manuscripts (manuscript, references, procedures, results, discussion) must be prepared in double-spaced text, not exceeding 4 pages, including references. There is no special section on clinical guidelines or commentaries for the journal. Manuscripts must be prepared in APA format. The full mailing address, telephone, fax and e-mail must be given here: National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, MD 20892-1785. JPP is a journal of the Society of Pediatric Psychology and considers marriage, family, and couples therapy along with psychological intervention with children, families and couples. Submissions must be prepared in double-spaced text, not exceeding 4 pages, including references.
